Gin: Mezclar, agitar, remover

Más de 40 combinados para amantes de la ginebra

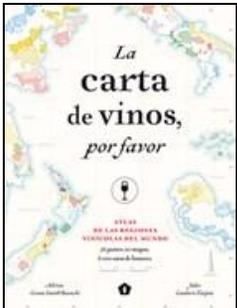

Dan Jones

Summary

Gin, formerly reserved for grandparents and housewives, is now the world's booming artisanal liquor. It is a fragrant and delicious drink that is coming back in fashion. With this book, Dan Jones' cocktail enthusiasm will teach readers to choose the best Gin brands, fill the bar like a professional and enrich mixtures with infusions, syrups, and other home-made productions. He also offers recipes: some classics, others bold and new. Begin with the basics—a Gin and tonic, Gin Rickey or Dirty Martini—and later readers will have the skills to try adventurous drinks that demonstrate the versatility of gin.

Contributor Bio

Dan Jones is one of the most prolific cocktail creators in the world, and he is also a writer and editor. He has contributed to various publications, from I-D to Time Out. He loves working on cocktails at home and trying new recipes. His favorite is the Dirty Martini.

La carta de vinos, por favor

Atlas de las regiones vinícolas del mundo

Jules Gaubert-Turpin, Adrien Grant Smith Bianchi

Summary

From the banks of the Black Sea to the Andes mountain range, wine barrels have rolled together through history. How did the Pyrenean grape end up in Uruguay? How did wine get to Japan? This book is an atlas of vine-growing that looks back on the conquest of the grape. With stops in each wine country, from the oldest to most recent, this book discusses yesterday, today, and what happens in the future. In addition to including maps, this book contains fascinating data and stories about each major wine territory.

Contributor Bio

Jules Gaubert-Turpin and Adrien Grant Smith Bianchi are the co-creators of a collection of guides and posters about wine regions around the world. When they became interested in wine study, they found a lack of modern and aesthetic support, so they set about creating a new method to approach wine and its regions with this book.

Amor, odio y otros filtros

Samira Ahmed

Summary

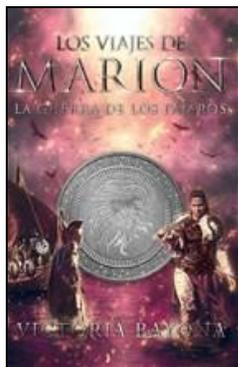

Maya Aziz is divided between two futures: that which her parents expect of "a good Indian Muslim daughter" and that which she desires: to go to New York to study film, and learn to swim with a school friend she hopes to date. But while she fights between her parent's and her desires, her world is shaken by a horrible act of terrorism. When a suicide bomber, who has the same last name, attacks a city in the United States, her life course is on the brink of being altered forever. The community she grew up in becomes unrecognizable: neighbors and classmates look at her with fear or hate. Maya must find inner strength to determine where she belongs.

Notas suicidas de chicas hermosas

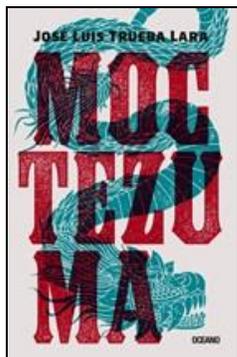

Lynn Weingarten

Summary

This novel has all the ingredients of great young adult lit—love, friendship, rebellion, and conflict—and is as suspenseful and mysterious as adult noir. After an argument that ends her friendship with Delia, June figured sooner or later they would get over it, but then Delia commits suicide. June barely has time to mourn before Delia's ex convinces her that it wasn't suicide—she was murdered. June is dragged into a web of lies and conspiracy she never expected.

El aliento de los ahogados

Alice Blanchard

Summary

Kate Wolfe understood guilt when her younger sister was kidnapped and murdered with excessive cruelty. 16 years later, she's a psychiatrist with a promising romance and the past seems far away. But after the arrival of a mysterious girl at the hospital, her life takes a devastating turn. A retired detective informs her that the one responsible for her sister's death is not the one imprisoned. And the mother of Maddie, the new patient, reveals details that confront her worst fear: that her history is more unclear than she believed.

Contributor Bio

Alice Blanchard won the Katherine Anne Porter Prize for Fiction for her book of short stories The Stuntman's Daughter. Her first novel Darkness Peering was a New York Times' Notable Book and a Barnes & Noble Best Mystery. She has also received a PEN Award, a New Letters Literary Award, and a Centrum Artists-in-Residence Fellowship. She lives in Connecticut.

Socorro (pero me dicen Coco)

Juana Inés Dehesa

Summary

Coco (Socorro, but don't call her that) is at a turning point in her life. Her work may (or may not) take her to a fashion show in Spain. Her impending marriage may (or may not) bring her happiness as a mother. But lately, her expectations do not seem to meet those of her mother or those that her fiancé promised. In this funny and irreverent novel, Juana Inés Dehesa paints us a picture of what it means to be thirty-something trying to find their path to happiness, or at least emotional tranquility.

Contributor Bio

Juana Inés Dehesa is a novelist, essayist, and editor. She is the author of the novels Pink Doll and Rebel Doll and is a weekly columnist for the newspaper Reforma.

Todos los días son nuestros

Catalina Aguilar Mastretta

Summary

After 10 years together, María and Emiliano are separating. What was it that drove them apart? A lack of desire? The mundane day-to-day? María, a bundle of nerves after the rupture, speaks of her pain, the changes, and what she cannot divorce from her one love. In an intimate and frank manner, the novel addresses the pain that lingers after a romantic break-up and the issue of reconstructing yourself.

Las cuatro tendencias

Los perfiles básicos de personalidad que te enseñan a mejorar tu vida (y la de los demás)

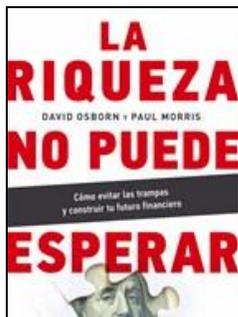

Gretchen Rubin

Summary

After years of studying human nature, Gretchen Rubin discovered that we can better understand our personality by analyzing how we respond to ourselves and others. There are four tendencies: the Upholders, the Questioners, the Obligers, and the Rebels. Each of these groups responds in a different way to relationships, to work, and to internal expectations. Rubin presents keys to understanding ourselves so we can reach more productive and happy lives.

Dar y recibir

Un enfoque revolucionario sobre el éxito

Adam H Grant

Summary

For generations, we have focused on the individual drivers of success: passion, hard work, talent, and luck. But today, success is increasingly dependent on how we interact with others. It turns out that at work, most people operate as takers, matchers, or givers. Using his own pioneering research, Adam Grant shows that these styles have a surprising impact on success.

Contributor Bio

Adam Grant received his B.A. from Harvard and his Ph.D. in organizational psychology from the University of Michigan. He has been recognized as one of the world's 25 most influential management thinkers and the world's top 40 business professors under 40.

Las malas lenguas

Barbarismos, desbarres, palabros, redundancias, sinsentidos y demás barrabasadas

Juan Domingo Argüelles

Summary

In this work, Juan Domingo Argüelles reviews the redundancies, poor pronunciation, and other linguistic gaffes that both the educated and uneducated commit. In addition, he offers a critical view of the linguistics institutions for being antiquated and omitting necessary dictionary entries. Through reading this, hopefully, a reader will learn to avoid the atrocities we say and write in Spanish.

Tuits para el siglo de la gran prueba

Disparos con parábola

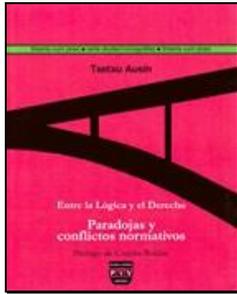

Jorge Reichmann

Summary

Electronic social media has undoubtedly become a decisive phenomenon in 21st century society. More generally, the Internet is influencing even the most basic forms of socialization and the anthropological conformation of human beings. But, in the face of the enlightenment that forcefully stresses an «internetcentrism» beset by techno-enthusiasm, examples of this kind are not scarce. One of the aspects to which less attention is paid is the mistaken setting of priorities that the culture of Silicon Valley induces, in a society and a time in which everything should be focused on trying to avoid the social-ecological collapse toward which we are heading. Jorge Reichmann made the leap to become @JorgeReichmann in April 2015, and from his new Twitter account he fired off these brief pieces. His tweets have been rewritten, reordered, and completed to build this book, which offers, in a few pages, a synthesis of the thoughts that this professor, essayist, activist, and poet from Madrid has been developing for more than three decades.

Contributor Bio

Jorge Reichmann, a professor of moral philosophy at the Autonomous University of Madrid, writes poems and essays. He has dedicated a considerable effort to try to understand the different dimensions of social ecology since the mid-1980s. He directed the Observatory of Sustainability in Spain in its constitutional phase, and he tried to develop something like a worker ecology with the First of May Foundation and the Institute of Labor, Environment, and Health between 1996 and 2008. Since 2013, he has coordinated the Transdisciplinary Research Group on Socioecological Transitions. He is the author of various collections of essays about questions of political ecology, environmental ethics, and ecological thought. He has published his reflections on ecological ethics in Éticas extramuros.

Entre la lógica y el derecho

Paradojas y conflictos normativos

Txetxu Ausín, Concha Roldán

Summary

Standing at the complex axis of law and philosophy, this thorough book proposes a rigorous analysis of the inferences underlying legal regulation. It ponders on the conditions under which a legal reasoning that encompasses categories of prohibition, duty, or permission is correct. It sets out to do so by examining normative paradoxes and conflicts, one of the biggest challenges that can hinder the treatment of normative inferences from a logical standpoint.

Visión lógica del derecho

Lorenzo Peña

Summary

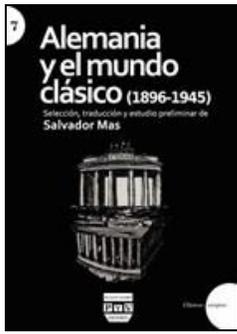

The law is a particular accumulation of norms whose essence lies in its function: the common good, or the ends for which society exists. It can only fulfill such a function in the measure to which rational nations permit some norms over others. The essence of the law is that of a rational system oriented to the fulfillment of the values that unites society, not a merely tolerant coexistence without the common work of the collective good. The reality of law, its existence, frequently departs from the essential content to incorporate the dregs, norms that obey the whims of the legislators. However, the presence of the dregs cannot repeal the normative content naturally in force in the law: the principle of the common good, the prohibition of the arbitrary, and the axioms of nomological logic. Possibility arises from there and includes the frequency of legal antimony. Legal rationalism configured like this has a double dimension. Descriptively, it finds present in all law those normative principles, valid for their own imminent value. Prescriptively, it points to the overcoming of the c...

Alemania y el mundo clásico

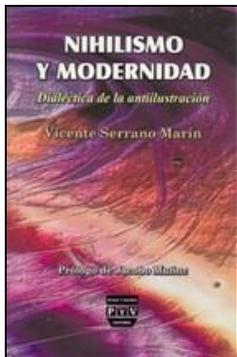

Salvador Mas

Summary

What is the classical world, other than an object of study accessible to a very few? Late 19th century and early 20th century German culture offers a privileged standpoint. This is used to prove that a subject matter that might seem anachronistic in the face of more pressing present-day issues is actually decisively relevant.

Nihilismo y Modernidad

Dialéctica de la antiilustración

Jacobo Muñoz Barcelona, Vicente Serrano Marín Madr...

Summary

Elevating the dilemma of "either God or nothingness" to his hermeneutic level, Vicente Serrano reconstructs the diverse landscape of postmodern theorizations of recent times, from Jacobi to the greats of German Idealism such as Nietzsche, Heidegger, and Foucault. The hermeneutical challenge of this book, which is also notable for its background of critical materialism, is to make room for theology in contemporary philosophy where it has been abrasively absent up until now.

Contributor Bio

Vicente Serrano is a professor of philosophy at the Complutense University of Madrid and holds a doctorate degree in philosophy and letters from the University of Barcelona. He is also a translator specializing in German philosophy, and has participated in numerous research projects and contributed to various periodicals and specialized publications.

Leer poesía, hablar imagen

Lingua scritta della realtà

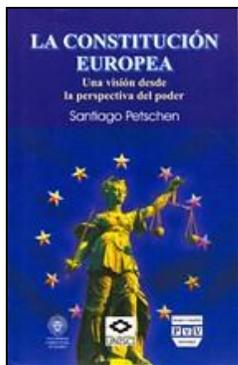

Román Reyes

Summary

Reality speaks, and reality is in conversation with reality. Reality can evoke, copy, or represent itself. The truth of the evocation, copy, or representation is the similitude or approximation between the truth of the speaker or writer and what the listener or reader receives. Between speaker-writer and listener-reader is established a field of intensity that makes the communication more fluid or dense and opaque. The intensity is intensity manifest out of intention. But the gap between is equally manifest out of interpretation. It is evoked from the sacred, and it is represented from sacred scenes. The evocation, the copy, and the representation are never profane because the body that evokes, copies, and represents is sacred. Just as the nature of that which is evoked, copied, and represented is sacred. The filmmaker speaks and writes the sounds of this reality with the sounds (and the light) of that reality. The language written from reality is a system of atypical codes, a system which cannot exclude the historical-cultural relationship of man with nature or flesh (mankind) with ...

La Constitución europea

Una visión desde la perspectiva del poder

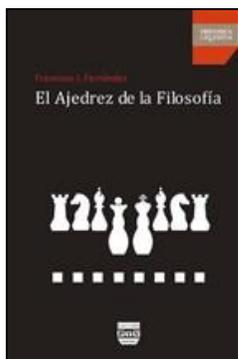

Santiago Petschen Barcelona

Summary

Through a penetrating analysis of the European constitutional treaty from the perspective of power struggles, this book examines the political and technical advancements of the European Constitution. It considers how the constitutional text, while enabling states to prevail over citizens—and better-off countries over all others—also paves the way for the eventual concretion of the vision advanced by the most fervent supporters of Europeanism.

Prospectiva e innovación

Experiencias

Enric Bas, Mario Guilló

Summary

Prospectiva e Innovacion is a treaty of a multidisciplinary and international nature that gathers multiple focuses, experiences, and sensibilities, in different contexts and fields, about the potentialities of the future for innovation and social development. This work contains contributions from many of the most well-known futurists in the world, and it is divided into three parts: visions, experiences, and proposals. This trilogy is intended to pay tribute to the fixtures of Emilio Frontela and Jesus Moneo, with a prologue by Federico Mayor Zaragoza. The second volume presents a series of international perspectives on the multidisciplinary field of prospective studies, centering on developed experiences in countries like Argentina, Colombia, Finland, and Hungary.

Contributor Bio

Enric Bas is a professor of futurism sociology at the University of Alicante. He won the Premio Extraordinario de Doctorado for his thesis on Megatendencies for the 21st century. He is a visiting professor at the Granada University and Valencia University and has been a guest lecturer at, among others, Sheffield-Hallam University, Budapest University, and Tamkang University. He is a member of the expert committee on "GWForecast: tracking the information revolution," directed by William Halal, as well as a member of the expert committee for FISTERA (Foresight on Information Technologies in the European Research Area). Bas is the first Spanish author to be publish an article about Prospective Studies in Castilian.

Mario Guillo is a professor in the Mediterranean Institute of Protocol Studies and an associate professor in the department of sociology at the University of Alicante (UA). He collaborates with the Office of International Projects at UA as an expert in prospective studies, innovation, and superior education. He has a degree in communication and a masters in marketing. La filosofía, el terror y lo siniestro

Vicente Serrano Marín

Summary

While there were great thinkers throughout history who made reference to the concept of "terror" (Kant and the sublime, Hegel and the French post-revolutionary terror, Heidegger and the ontological meaning of the term, or the approach of psychoanalysis to the sinister), studies related to this topic are still scarce, and the few that exist lack the adequate depth to deal with this phenomenon. This edition has a series of texts written by recognized specialists (Vicente Serrano, Antonio Castilla, Arturo Leyte, Miguel Morey, Mauricio Mancilla Muñoz, Ana Carrasco Conde, Jorge Fernandez Gonzalo and Enrique Lynch) that enter fully into the subject terror and its main links with philosophy, psychoanalysis, literature and society in general. What is terror? How is it represented in literature and cinema? What really is its political function? La filosofía, el terror y lo siniestro gives us the key to access these and other issues and opens avenues of reflection that are of vital importance to understanding the springs that operate behind our contemporary society.

Contributor Bio

Vicente Serrano Marín is a philosopher and author of more than 20 books, articles, and collective works on modern and contemporary philosophy, moral and political thought, and communications in the digital era. He holds a PhD from the Complutense University of Madrid and is a professor of philosophy at the Austral University of Chile. Some of his books include La herida de Spinoza, Felicidad y política en la vida posmoderna and Fraudebook. Lo que la red social hace con nuestras vidas. El taller de las ideas

Diez lecciones de historia de la ciencia

José Luis González Recio

Summary

In spite of attempts to divorce philosophy from science, the physical world remains a field of study with fundamentally philosophical roots and implications. Cultural, linguistic, and social aspects inevitably intervene in the way we conceive of nature, and the assumption of epistemological criteria is implied in any quest for knowledge. Such premise leads the way for the authors of this repertoire of lessons to approach and explore the history of ideas.

Contributor Bio

José Luis González Recio has a degree in philosophy with honors from Complutense University Madrid where he received his PhD. He has been a grant-holder from the Center of University Studies and the Ministry of Exterior Affairs, and he has taught at the Foundation of Science and Letters, the Papal University of Salamanca, and the Virtual Institute of Human Sciences Madrid. He is currently a tenured professor with the philosophy faculty at his Alma Mater where he teaches courses on the philosophy of biology. He has published several books, including Teorías de la vida (2004), El taller de la ideas: Diez lecciones de historia de la ciencia (2005) y Galileo en el infierno: Un diálogo con Paul Feyerabend (2007).

Filosofía e inmanencia

Xabier Insausti

Summary

What do we mean when we talk about immanency? And can our modern cultural crisis be defined in terms of a crisis of the concept of transcendence? These questions constitute the starting point for the reflections compiled in this book. Backed by a rich repertoire of classical and contemporary philosophers—the likes of Nietzsche, Marx, and Deleuze—who have explored the complex connection between immanency and transcendence, the authors in this compilation explore ideas that ultimately reflect on what the subject of study and breadth of philosophy truly should be.

Contributor Bio

Xabier Insausti Ugarriza holds a PhD in philosophy from Ludwig Maximilian University of Munich. He is a professor of theory of knowledge at the University of the Basque Country, and the cofounder of the International Network of Critical Thinking. His essays on philosophy, especially on Hegel and German idealism, have been published in journals and included in collective works.

CHAMANISMOS EN EL MUNDO ACTUAL

Carlos Hugo Sierra

Summary

Shamanism is a fascinating human practice endowed with great complexity that reflects, in the manner of its contemporary and historical manifestations, the patriarchal culture of the indigenous peoples all over the world - from the heart of the amazon jungle to the harsh Northern expanses of the Siberian steppes, from the ancestral peoples of rural South Africa to the arid mountains of the Musgrave in central Australia. With all of them, the universal application and the current use of the term 'shamanism' can lead to a false idea of uniformity, which is far removed from the profound and extreme disparity that characterizes, in reality, this type of traditional experience. Maybe this has been one of the reasons why, in recent decades, the universal view of global Shamanism has become a significant object of study for multiple academic disciplines, such as anthropology, ethnic history, archaeology, and ethno-botany, and that has aroused, in its turn, a surprising curiosity among the public in general. Nevertheless, the knowledge of Shamanism continues to be a matter so little accessib...

Carlos Hugo Sierra has a masters in rural development. He is an associate professor and the UNESCO chair for sustainable development and environmental education at the University of Basque Country. He has completed important research in the specific field of systems of production and Amazonian biodiversity for the Amazonian Institute of Scientific Research. He is the co-author of the project International Assessment of the Agricultural Knowledge, Science, and Technology for Development for UNESCO and World Bank. Among his abundant bibliographic contributions, the ones in particular that stand out are his editing works for several collections about the Amazon. He is one of the highest specialists in models of intentional cooperation for his work in the Amazon region.

ECONOMÍA, DEMOCRACIA Y VALORES EN UN MUNDO GLOBAL

Esteban Anchustegui Igartua

Summary

The human being, repository of the principles of personality, dignity, equality, and solidarity, is the axis about which democratic societies are constructed as a result of the combination of individual and collective self-determination. Solidarity is an element that allows us to recognize ourselves in the other and preoccupy ourselves with their wellbeing: to mobilize resources and establish relations with other collectives and social movements, forming a great network of people and organizations oriented to construct a world more just, democratic, and egalitarian. The world, societies, and labor spaces are constructed in a participatory manner out of respect for individuals and people groups, allowing them to decide their own personal and social development. Politics is a space of horizontal relationships between people and social collectives in the search for common interests, and to that end a democracy of development based on real citizen participation should be promoted. The effects of the globalization process bring up problems that have to be approached for the sake of harmon...

Esteban Anchustegui Igartua is a tenured professor of moral and political philosophy at the University of Basque Country (UPV/EHU) and an honorary professor with the National University of San Antonio Abad in Cusco, Peru where he has worked as a teacher and coordinator of the research group "Identity and Citizenship." He is also the principal researcher with the UPV/EHU projects on the rhetoric of the Enlightenment period and the discursive paradigms of Diderot and Rousseau. In his solo research, he studies nationalism and democracy, political republicanism, identity and citizenship, and ethics and politics. He has published more than ninety articles in specialized journals. He is the writer or editor of thirty books on political theory and a member of the scientific board for several European and American journals. BALCANES, LA HERIDA ABIERTA DE EUROPA

Conflicto y reconstrucción de la convivencia

José Ángel Ruiz Jiménez

Summary

Since the beginning of the Balkan Wars in 1991, there has been constant academic and media interest in the region, almost always focused on its most violent and striking aspects: wars, ethnic cleansing, murderous nationalisms, age-old hatreds, and more. This book offers a different image, more intimate yet complex, of the Balkans, made up of reflections by specialists from NGOs, the military, and various academic areas. It is hoped that readers will come to view the Balkan Peninsula more positively and understand the challenges and the richness of the region, and its important role in European history, more holistically.

Contributor Bio

José Ángel Ruiz Jiménez is a professor of contemporary history at the University of Granada and a member of its Peace and Conflict Research Institute. He formerly taught at the John Jay College of Criminal Justice and at various universities in Colombia, the United Kingdom, Italy, and the former Yugoslavia. Ruiz Jiménez holds a doctorate degree in contemporary history from the University of Granada and a European Master in human rights from the Universities of Padua and Essex.

ECOLOGÍA Y GÉNERO EN DIÁLOGO INTERDISCIPLINAR

Alicia Puleo

Summary

In the present context of multiple systemic crises, philosophy has to think of a future world worth being alive for. This task requires a dialogue with other disciplines and an attentive look at the present reality. This work, in particular, examines the socio-cultural frameworks that piece together the relationships between our bodies and the ecosystems we inhabit. The intersection of problematic ecology and a critical perspective of genre opens a field of an enormous wealth of theory and practice. Ecofeminism, ecocriticism, interculturalism, and social ecology are the conceptual axes of this plural view analyze discourses, constructs alternatives, and traverses paths of transformation and hope. From these various focuses and themes, the studies included in this book come together to search for a horizon of regulatory generation of thoughts and practices for ecojustice, environmental sustainability, human development, and respect for nature.

LA CÓLERA DE OCCIDENTE

Perspectivas filosóficas sobre la guerra y la paz

Fernando-Miguel Pérez Herranz

Summary

This book, written from the perspective of "philosophical anthropology," presents concepts which articulate the debate about the origins of war and demonstrate how it has transformed, reaching a political, diplomatic, cultural, and religious relevance that is very different from how it began, according to Carl von Clausewitz. The book narrates the political, economic, and cultural crisis of the two World Wars and the medieval wars, and describes the weapons, armies, political administrations, etc. But how is it possible for a world war to lead to the annihilation of a people like the Holocaust? The military events of the 20th century have brought about a point of no return that obliges us to visit it time and again until we have digested its nuances. We should ask ourselves to give peace an opportunity, to think of a world in which gratuitous violence has been banished, a world in which universal ethical laws have been established. Contributors to this volume include: Fernando Miguel Perez, Allan Jani, Enzo Traverso, Enrique Gavlan, Julia Urabayen, Chaniel Maillard, Elena Najera, Mon...

WITTGENSTEIN, LA SUPERACIÓN DEL ESCEPTICISMO

Juan Vicente Mayoral, David Pérez Chico

Summary

Ludwig Wittgenstein's Sobre la certeza developed a new way to overcome skepticism based on the categorical distinction between belief and its ultimate foundation. This collection brings together essays that explore this philosophy in detail, provide new perspectives on epistemology in his works, and study his influence on other contemporary philosophers. Written during the last years of his life and published posthumously in 1969, Sobre la certeza is considered by scholars an essential text within Wittgenstein's philosophical development and a key contribution to epistemology.

Átomos, almas y estrellas

Estudios sobre la ciencia griega

José Luis González Recio

Summary

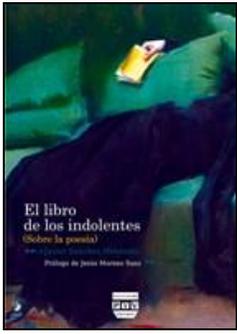

Everything from the fifth postulate in Euclidean geometry, the role of the Archimedes' Principle in the law of gravity, the consistency of the equant in geometric astronomy, and the communication between veins and arteries in physiology required scientists in the modern and contemporary eras to look to Greece and establish a dialogue with their Greek predecessors. Intended both for lovers of science and the humanities, Átomos, almas y estrellas is intended for anyone who wishes to understand the origins of scientific and technical knowledge, its relationship to philosophy, and its origins in Hellenic culture.

El Libro de los indolentes

(Sobre la poesía)

Javier Sánchez Menéndez

Summary

Loving poetry is a symbol of indolence, a challenge that requires solitude and silence, sacrifice and permanent devotion. All that a human being needs to live can be found in poetry, the artistic genre par excellence. El libro de los indolentes is a journey towards an unknown place where we inhabit, each day, a fortified but unwallled space, a river that gushes truth.

Contributor Bio

Javier Sánchez Menéndez is a poet and essayist. His poetic works are compiled in two anthologies, Faltan palabras en el diccionario and Por complacer a mis superiores.

Filosofía de la caducidad

Antonio Valdecantos

Summary

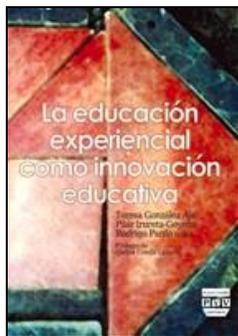

Expiration dates on goods of consumption are the canonical form that, in late modernity, have brought about an idea of finality. We have come to believe that, following the model of packaged goods and medicine, any object of use or pleasure (including the intricately cultural and moral, such as the identities of its consumer) must always result in an irrevocable end. However, in the contemporary understanding of time, this mass acceleration of obsolescence is only half of the story. Just like any other era, the late-modern period is understood as a confusing mixture of imminences, innovations, deferments, and delays, but, more than any other stretch of history, the present contains a huge amount of the past in each of its ephemeral changes. Modernity has a very long history of innovation, but its latest phase in particular always has the ghost of the past hovering just out of sight, waiting for people to repeat their mistakes. The gods of late modernity entertain themselves by bringing about a dramatic trepidation in which mortals believe reside all sorts of change, events, and crise...

La EDUCACIÓN EXPERIENCIAL COMO INNOVACIÓN EDUCATIVA

Teresa González Aja, Rodrigo Pardo, Pilar Urueta-G...

Summary

Changes in society and technology have brought about new learning and teaching techniques. More importantly, they have developed new ways of thinking that have had a deep impact on our universities. While the ultimate aim of education in Ancient Greece was the achievement of a series of civic, moral, and intellectual qualities, today it encompasses such concepts as learning to know, learning to do, and learning to live together. An indispensable reference tool on experiential education, this timely book looks at the ways in which education has adjusted to the new values and quests of a new time.

Contributor Bio

She is a professor at the Polytechnic University of Madrid and at the Department of Social Science and Physical Activity, Sport, and Leisure of the School of Physical Activity and Sports Science. She is the author of the book Introducción del deporte en España. Su repercusión en el arte.

Rodrigo Pardo is a PhD in sports and physical activity science. He also holds a master's degree in sports psychology from the Autonomous University of Madrid, and a master's degree in community leadership from the California State University, Los Angeles. He is the author and coauthor of several book chapters and research articles.

ENCRUCIJADAS MORALES

Una aproximación a los dilemas y su impacto en el razonamiento práctico

Guillermo Lariguét

Summary

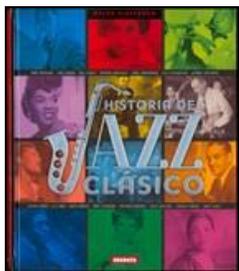

The question of moral dilemmas, despite its importance, was underestimated for a long time in moral philosophy. In this work, Guillermo Lariguét proposes to offer an introduction to problems of evident philosophical relevance and practical consequences relating to the nature of the limits of reasoning practices and to the range of principles of deontic logic, such as that of consistency and "should implies could," which is useful for both the philosopher and the layperson. He also discusses themes linked to the conceptual statute of the incommensurability of values and the link between conflicts and moral pluralism. Besides offering an approximation to the challenge of this dilemma, the book presents multiple examples of how moral theories have tried to deal with these situations which, on occasion, can be very tragic in nature when inevitable evils are present within them.

Contributor Bio

Guillermo Lariguét earned his doctorate in law and social science from the National University in Cordoba, Argentina. He is an adjunct researcher with the Board of Scientific and Technical Research in Argentina, and he has developed his research work with the Research Center of Philosophy and Humanities faculty at his alma mater. He has completed post-doctoral training at Pompeu Fabra University in Barcelona and the Institute of Philosophical Research with UNAM in Mexico. He has published articles in international journals as well as several books on various themes related to practical philosophy.
